PCO #2 - The existing panels that feed out of existing panel 1 have no neutral. Existing panel 2 has a neutral but it is full, mainly with split units. The electrician recommended if the units do not require neutral that they can be moved to existing panel 1 and be fed to the new panel out of existing panel 2. Upon further review the split units do require neutral and their suggestion is to rerun wire to the existing panel with no neutral wire and install a neutral. This will be needed in order to power the new building.

$9,222.50

PCO #3 - After analyzing the report provided by the roofing consultant we noticed that the proper insatllation was not taken. Based on specs we are instructed to adhere the membrane. However the roofer did the torch down method. After speaking to both the roofing consultant and the products manufacturer, they both informed us that this is just as good as using adhesive. The reason for the change order is that the adhesive method is more labor intensive and uses more material.
